Include Closure in your New Beginnings

Dear Vickie,

Maybe you were drawn to the Twin Flame information because you were hungry for love and intimacy. Maybe you just long for "The One" or believe you have found "The One". If, however, you attempt to mold your projection of your ideal for a Twin Flame onto a poor, unsuspecting lover instead of becoming the ideal yourself, chances are your lover will usually fail to meet your expectations and the relationship will falter, wither, and die.

This scenario is the perfect example of the Masculine energy out of balance with the Feminine; envisioning what you want, then implementing your will to go out and get the thing you think you need. In Divine balance, your Masculine energy would envision the ideal pattern desired, use its will to give the pattern energy, then take it to the silent, receptive Feminine within to allow the time for gestation. The ideal held within the Feminine field allows the love contained within to coalesce around the ideal, nurturing and protecting the ideal as it grows within to become part of your own pattern.

In order to magnetically attract that which you desire, you must first become it. You fulfill the need from within and then allow it to be mirrored back to you in another. Cat Clemett and I explored that pattern thoroughly in our e-book, How To Find The One True Love.

Since I first began sharing the Twin Flame information many years ago, I've seen that Masculine energy out of balance archetype repeat over and over again in relationships. But in the process, I've learned something remarkable;

It doesn't matter how the longing brings you to the information. The only thing that matters is that you recognize the inner call to the evolutionary full re-union of the balanced co-creative energies of the Divine Masculine and Divine Feminine within.

There's a wonderful "aha!" moment when you finally understand that all relationships are mirrors. Then you graduate from your elementary education and begin to propel yourself forward on the greatest soul journey of all lifetimes.

Suddenly you realize you're 100% responsible for the construction of both your perception and your reality and you make an effort to discontinue creating by default. When that revelation becomes realized, relationships are no longer about searching for a food source or for someone to complete you. You begin to understand Love as the Only Thing That's Real and it becomes the focus of your life as something you can embody and emanate. Giving love instead of searching for someone to give it to you changes the whole paradigm and game plan you've most likely inherited from your parents and the misguided media. As you awaken to the truth of your identity as Love, you'll begin to re-evaluate and redefine relationships. As you change, so will the mirrors before you in the face of your intimate relations. You're being called to completely honor yourself, which includes surrounding yourself with beings capable of truly supporting and reflecting back to you what you are within; people and partners who can respect you and share your journey in a state of equality.

Notice, if you're involved in dishonoring relationships, the universe provides you opportunity after opportunity to bring them to a close so you can deliberately create the new reality you desire. If you're expanding the God within and your partner cannot or will not grow at a similar rate, or if they attempt to impede your growth in any way, an opening will present itself to terminate the relationship. If you allow closure in that situation, it will free both of you to grow within the spheres of influence for which you're vibrationally prepared.

Nothing can stop you from remaining in bondage to the old pattern, but you will be presented a chance to launch into a new model. If you have old karmic patterns between yourself and another, you also have an opportunity to sever those ties and dissolve and consume old mis-creations with the Violet Consuming Flame rather than attempting to balance things by re-creating the old patterns. Then, release the old and make new, life-affirming choices.

We're moving so swiftly into the new energy as the Divine Feminine is being re-anchored both on the planet and within our own systems. It is forcing everything that interferes with Divine Love to surface. I know it looks like crisis and chaos, but it is the greatest opportunity in disguise. Clearing out the old patterns doesn't mean re-engaging. They surface only to be eliminated.

A new reality, a new freedom, is beckoning every awakened Twin Flame heart. It is a new way of perceiving and relating with reverence to the God in All things. This return to at-one-ment is taking place on every level. It doesn't mean we merge into nothingness. It means we live both within the Great River of Love that is the Ongoing Moment of Creation and as individual, fully realized expressions of God. Both/And.

Jump in with both feet and challenge your doubts as you explore the furthest reaches of your Twin Flame education. The more you know, the further you go. Whether you're in the first stages of understanding, or you're an adept in the use of the Twin Flame heart womb, there's such a grand and glorious prospect at hand. And, my dear ones, it's only the beginning.

To explore this further, you can begin or expand your education through the many offerings I have made available.

Only Love is Real!
